Mr. David Moth Robertson

Standing as a symbol of unity between faculty and student body is our principal. Mr. David Moth Robertson. Faculty and students alike go to him for advice, counsel, and help. In his office they are welcomed with keen interest and friendly enthusiasm, no matter how trivial their problem may be.

He is the teacher of Latin and Senior English and he coaches the girls softball and basketball teams.

The Strings lead the orchestra, and usually play the melody. The strings are said to have tones that are sweet, rich, sombre, mellow, deep, booming, and beautifull. The strings are the main members of the orchestra, and there would be no orchestra without them.

This aptly describes the senior class, as the following pages will aptly describe the various others.

Whenever there is a need for emphasis, call the brasses. They can also be depended upon for soft, smooth tones, if one can tune them down correctly. The brasses have one fault: They take away some of the glory of the strings.
